The Exchange implements two sets of price limit product rules in new CBOT rulebook chapter 14U. The Exchange resets price limits each year, in May and November, based on the 45 trade days prior to April 16th and October 16th respectively. The Ukrainian Wheat (Platts) Futures contract will not have 45 trade days prior to the first price limit reset in 2021. Therefore, a set price limit will be established, effective upon launch followed by the second price limit reset in November 2021. As a result, Appendix A includes Chapter 14U as effective on April 12, 2020 and Appendix B includes Chapter 14U as effective on November 1, 2021.

The Exchange reviewed the designated contract market core principles (“Core Principles”) as set forth in the Commodity Exchange Act (“CEA” or “Act”) and identified that the following Core Principles may be impacted by this initiative as follows:

- Compliance with Rules: Trading in the Contracts will be subject to all CBOT Rules, including prohibitions against fraudulent, noncompetitive, unfair and abusive practices as outlined in CBOT Rule Chapter 4, the Exchange’s trade practice rules, the majority of which are contained in Chapter 5 and Chapter 8 of the CBOT Rulebook, and the dispute resolution and arbitration procedures of CBOT Rule Chapter 6. As with all products listed for trading on one of CME Group’s designated contract markets, trading activity in the Contracts will be subject to monitoring and surveillance by CME Group’s Market Regulation Department. The Market Regulation Department has the authority to exercise its investigatory and enforcement power where potential rule violations are identified.

- Contracts not Readily Subject to Manipulation: The Contracts are not readily subject to manipulation because of its structural attributes, active underlying market and reliance on a well administered index. Final settlements are based on the averaging of assessments from a price reporting agency licensed with the Exchange.
- Prevention of Market Disruption: Trading in the Contracts will be subject to the rules of the Exchange, which include prohibitions on manipulation, price distortion, and disruption to the cash settlement process. As with any new product listed for trading on a CME Group designated contract market, trading activity in the option contract proposed herein will be subject to monitoring and surveillance by CME Group's Market Regulation Department.
- Position Limitations or Accountability: The speculative position limits for the Contracts as demonstrated in this submission are consistent with the Commission's guidance.
- Emergency Authority: As with all CME Group futures and options product, the Exchange shall have full authority to act appropriately and as necessary in emergency situations.
- Availability of General Information: The Exchange will publish on its website information in regard to contract specifications, terms, and conditions, as well as daily trading volume, open interest, and price information for the Contracts. The Exchange will issue a Special Executive Report ("SER") regarding the launch of the Contracts. The SER will also be posted on the CME Group website.
- Daily Publication of Trading Information: The Exchange will publish contract trading volumes, open interest levels, and price information daily on its website and through quote vendors for the Contracts.
- Execution of Transactions: The Contracts will be listed for trading on the CME Globex and for submission of clearing through the CME ClearPort platform. The CME Globex trading venue provides for competitive and open execution of transactions and affords the benefits of reliability and global connectivity.
- Trade Information: All requisite trade information for the Contracts will be included in the audit trail and is sufficient for the Market Regulation Department to monitor for market abuse.
- Financial Integrity of Contracts: The Contracts will be cleared by the CME Clearing, a derivatives clearing organization registered with the CFTC and subject to all CFTC Regulations related thereto.
- Protection of Market Participants: CBOT Rulebook Chapters 4 and 5 set forth multiple prohibitions that preclude intermediaries from disadvantaging their customers. These rules apply to trading in all of the Exchange's competitive trading venues.
- Disciplinary Procedures: Chapter 4 of the Rulebook contains provisions that allow the Exchange to discipline, suspend or expel members or market participants that violate the Rulebook. Trading in the Contracts will be subject to Chapter 4, and the Market Regulation Department has the authority to exercise its enforcement power in the event rule violations in these products are identified.
- Dispute Resolution: Disputes with respect to trading in the Contracts will be subject to the arbitration provisions set forth in Chapter 6 of the Rulebook. Chapter 6 allows all non-members to submit a claim for financial losses resulting from transactions on the Exchange to arbitration. A member named as a respondent in a claim submitted by a non-member is required to participate in the arbitration pursuant to Chapter 6. Additionally, the Exchange requires that members resolve all disputes concerning transactions on the Exchange via arbitration.

Pursuant to Section 5c(c) of the Act and CFTC Regulation 40.2(a), the Exchange hereby certifies that the listing of the Contract complies with the Act, including regulations under the Act. There were no substantive opposing views to this proposal.

The Exchange certifies that this submission has been concurrently posted on the Exchange's website at <http://www.cmegroup.com/market-regulation/rule-filings.html>.

Ukrainian Wheat Futures Deliverable Supply Analysis

Cash Market Overview

The Board of Trade of the City of Chicago, Inc. ("CBOT" or Exchange) offers a range of Platts based Black Sea Grain futures and options on futures contracts for trading on CME Globex and for submission into clearing via CME ClearPort. Due to changes in the Russian wheat market, the Exchange proposes to launch derivatives contracts based on a Platts assessment of Black Sea Wheat harmonized to the Ukrainian market.

The Black Sea region is a main hub for global wheat production and exports. The region is made up of the countries surrounding the Black Sea – Bulgaria, Georgia, Romania, Russia, Turkey, and Ukraine. Of those, four are the largest wheat producers and exporters (in order): Russia, Ukraine, Romania, and Bulgaria.

The Black Sea region as a wheat producer and exporter has grown in importance over recent decades. In the 1960s, the Black Sea countries produced approximately 5% of the world's wheat but exported only approximately 1% of global wheat exports. In 2019/2020, the Black Sea was responsible for about 15-20% of global wheat production, and made up over a third of global wheat exports.¹ On average, Russia accounts for over half of the Black Sea's wheat exports and Ukraine makes up between 25-30% of Black Sea wheat exports.

As shown by the fact that the region exports a larger percentage of global wheat than it produces, it is known as a regional export hub. Egypt is the largest importer of wheat from the region, receiving 26% of all reported exports in 2019. Other large importers in 2019 were Indonesia, Turkey, Italy, Brazil, Japan and Spain.² The majority of wheat trade is conducted by sea as opposed to land.

The export market is facilitated by numerous local and international firms who procure wheat from farmers, typically paying local currency, move it to a port and sell it into the international market. Trades into the international market are typically transacted in US Dollars on a per cargo basis. Cargo sizes vary from 3,000 ton coasters to 78,000 ton panamax vessels. Handysize vessels, with deadweight tonnage in the region of 28,000 metric tons are the most frequently used vessels in the export market. Each physical cargo parcel may be traded multiple times, in what is referred to as a string of back to back contracts. Wheat is typically bought and sold on a spot basis, with the typical delivery term being 1 month to 6 weeks. Little or no long-term deals are concluded in the market, and all cargoes are considered re-tradable, based on feedback from traders involved with Black Sea wheat. Large multinational firms are active on both the buy and the sell side as well as in the spot market.

Assessment & Data

Platts publishes a number of assessments on products throughout the Black Sea. The relevant assessment here, Platts FOB Black Sea Wheat (Ukraine 11.5%), is a spot assessment that tracks loadings to cover the shipment period 28-42 days after publication date. The price is based in USD per metric ton and the trade size quantity is 25,000 metric tons with an operational tolerance as per standard market practice. The load port is FOB Odessa, Pivdennyi and Chornomorsk (POC). In the absence of representative FOB POC price information, Platts will use prevailing spot freight rates and origin adjustments to normalize to FOB POC. For this reason, this analysis will cover exports from all four of the major Black Sea wheat exporting countries.

Monthly data was taken from the UN Comtrade database. For most countries, full 2020 data is not yet available, so data from 2017 to 2019 was used. Where months were missing, the data was derived using one of two methods. Where the UN Comtrade database had monthly export values, but no volume, monthly volume was derived by taking the average value per ton in that month for the other two years and dividing the value by that number. For example, Romania's June 2017 volume was calculated by taking the average value per ton in June 2018 and June 2019 ($210.12), and dividing the June 2017 value ($35,891,716) by that price per ton. Where months were completely devoid of monthly volume or value data, the volume was derived by averaging the volume in that month for the other two years. For example, Ukraine's April 2019 volume was calculated by taking the average volume of April 2017 and April 2018.

The above data represents monthly total exports of wheat from the four main Black Sea exporters. However, the futures contract does not represent the totality of Black Sea wheat exports. The focus of the underlying reference of the proposed futures contracts is seaborne trade. The information provided on export destinations can be used to identify destinations where the mode of transport is likely to be by land, or in the case of Russian exports likely to take a route other than through the Black Sea. This analysis suggests that approximately 12.5% of exports can be identified in this way.³ For that reason, the tables below show export numbers that have been reduced by 12.5%.

Additionally, Russian exports have been trimmed even further. Given its geographical size and position, data for Russian wheat must be examined more closely, to better identify the volumes that are relevant to the Black Sea region. As assessed by the USDA, Russia supports both a winter wheat crop and a spring wheat crop. The winter wheat production areas are in close proximity to the Black Sea, and are likely to be more relevant for the Black Sea export market. The USDA provides a breakdown of Russian wheat production as follows:

Table 8:

	2018/19	2019/20	2020/21	3-year average
Winter Wheat	51,000	54,500	59,800	55,100
Spring Wheat	20,600	19,000	25,500	21,700
Total	71,600	73,500	85,300	76,800
Share of Winter Wheat in total Production	71%	74%	70%	72%

Therefore, data for Russian exports is reduced by a further 28% to reflect the proportion of the national crop which is winter wheat, and applicable to this contract.

When all combined with applicable discounting for land-based exports and wheat varieties, the total monthly exports of relevant Black Sea wheat is found below. The table shows that annual exports varied between 44.4 million metric tons and 50.9 million metric tons. The 3-year average monthly exports were approximately 4 million metric tons.

As with many agricultural commodities, the nature of wheat production and export in the Black Sea region is seasonal. The months in the late spring and early summer tend to experience relative lulls in exports, while the late summer and autumn months account for the majority of exports within the year.

Deliverable Supply

The Platts FOB Black Sea Wheat (Ukraine 11.5%) tracks loadings from the ports of FOB Odessa, Pivdennyi and Chornomorsk (POC). However, data on transactions, bids, and offers from other areas within the Black Sea is sometimes taken into consideration and harmonized to a Ukrainian price. Therefore, applicable exports from the four major Black Sea wheat exporting countries were used as the basis for the determination of deliverable supply.

The adjusted export volumes described in Table 10 represent the Exchange's assessment of deliverable supply. The average yearly total export volume for the three years 2017-2019 is 47.6 million metric tons. Deliverable supply is assessed as 3.965 million metric tons per month using data for the period 2017-2019. The contract size of the proposed new futures contracts is 50 metric tons. Deliverable supply is therefore equivalent to 79,307 contracts per month prior to applying a seasonality adjustment.

This data shows that the month of June has the smallest delivery volumes, which is consistent with the crop cycle. The average volume for the month of June in the past three years is 1.9 million tons for the month, which is around 50% of the average for all months for the period shown in Table 12. The next lowest January, February and May where loadings across the three months equaled an average of 70% of the average monthly loadings. Due to loadings in these three months being similar, it was decided best to base the all other month limit based on the average exports for these months. According to the Platts assessment methodology, the Black Sea Wheat cash market assessment is based on a loading window of 28 – 42 days forward. This means that June Black Sea exports correspond to the cash market activity observed during the month of May.

Based on the current level of deliverable supply, the Exchange proposes spot month limits of 3,000 contracts for the May contract and 6,000 contracts for all other contract months. The spot month limits for the May contract amounts to 7.57% of the seasonally adjusted deliverable supply of 39,653 contracts (equal to 50% of 79,307 monthly contracts). The spot month limits for all other contract months amount to 10.81% of the seasonally adjusted deliverable supply of 55,515 contracts (equal to 70% of 79,307 monthly contracts).

The 'Initial Spot-Month Limit Effective Date' will be the opening of trading on the first business day of the contract month. For example, the March 2021 contract will have an initial spot month limit effective date of March 1, 2021. The Exchange recommends a single-month Accountability Levels set at 6,000 contracts, all-month Accountability Level set at 6,000 contracts, and a reportable level of 25 contracts. This is a Diminishing Balance Contract.
