The CFTC denied our request in full, citing FOIA Exemption 7(A), 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(7)(A) "because disclosure of that material could reasonably be expected to interfere with the conduct of federal agency law enforcement activities." The agency further stated that it conducted a segregability analysis and determined there were no reasonably segregable portions to release. But the CFTC made no effort to detail its efforts to obtain these records or provide any meaningful explanation of what that segregability analysis entailed. After consulting with Reuters' legal counsel, we believe the CFTC's blanket denial of our request under FOIA Exemption 7(A), 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(7)(A) is overly broad. Is your office indicating that every document you obtained with respect to our request pertains to an ongoing investigation? This response is not credible either under the circumstances or the law, and we question whether an adequate search for records and review of such records was conducted. Archer-Daniels-Midland Co is a registrant of the CFTC that would have many reasons for regular communications with agency officials. Thus, a blanket denial under this exemption is insufficient instification. Reuters is appealing your decision on these grounds. We will be mailing a hard copy of this communication to the General Counsel's office. It is also attached to this email. 09/26/2024 Dear FOIA Compliance Office, My name is Kevin Clarke, and I am a student the University of Texas conducting research for a class project. I am specifically looking for copies of No-Action Letters (NALs) that were publicly issued by the CFTC but later withdrawn. It seems that the online archives do not include NALs that have been revoked or withdrawn. Could you please advise on how I may obtain these documents or guide me through the appropriate process to access them?
